MACTAVISH AND THE QUEEN OF PHAEBE.

The following is taken from a recent edition of "Oleto Lays" issued from Edinburgh. Mactavish is found upon the head of this houseless man, with his thick of spirit and imagination. By the help of water and great St. Eilan the houseless man has died to the point of articulation speech:

First his nose he felt Then he thus remarked—
"I have seen a vision:
I shall tell you all
That you may judge the fitness
Of the things I saw."
I had been the witness.
I had not consumed
More than half a gallon,
With Bory Oig McGraw
And Angus son of Allan;
And was a walking home
In this new position,
When my eyes beheld
A beautiful apparition.

From a tuft of rushes
Rose a splendid figure,
About a woman's height,
Perhaps a little bigger.
She was dressed in white,
Her arms were somewhat hairy,
And I knew at once
It was the Queen of Phaebie.

Says she, "Forgive me!
Let me taste your spirit,
I have heard before
Of your wondrous merits."
I emptied out my flask
And she gulped down to eat,
Wishing it a cake,
To drink would have been greater.

While she talked apart
To women of the weather, My arm I round her put
And brought her life together;
But she jumped, quite angry,
And dashed me with her pinions,
Then flew off, I suppose,
Took her own dominions.

"Hail! good night! Oig, says I,
She was very sorry;
She met a little goat
When coming up to see;
On her horns was sticking
The chiefest of the pinnet;
Tid was in the work
You may depend upon it!"

QUEER QUESTIONS.
Says the Poet Mactavish:
Nor Solomon with his wisdom, Nor Cagliostro with his crystal could be Of any service to many of our readers who have been good enough to write questions to test the merits of Lord Trevelyan's Bureau of Universal Knowledge. Who can fathom the fables of computers? Let us take a few examples and tabulate them as curiosities.

What is the name of the latest inhabitant of Phaebie?
How many trees has Mr Gladstone felled in his life?
How many paving-stones are there in London?

How many tan-bags are there within the four-mile radius?
Kindly give the total number of clerks in the Railway Clearing House in debt, and who are liable at any time to be summoned before a county court judge.

Is it possible for the dead to rise at the Resurrection in the same body, as expressed by the Church, after that body has been crushed?

Please tell me the depth in the deepest place of the mud in the Great Salt Lake Desert?

How many panes of glass are there in windows in the whole of London?
Who was William the Conqueror's first best man?

What is the degree of congeniency between Mr Gladstone and Cain or Abel?
How many honest men are there in London?

How many stones have been thrown into the Serpentine river in Hyde Park this year by boys and girls?

What was the price charged for the first glass of ale publicly sold by the first licensed victualler granted a licence in England?
Explain the origin of evil.

The name of the first man who, 45,000 years ago, built his own canoe and paddled it?

How many persons named Smith have been born in the world since 1718?
Where are the bones of the late General Gordon, the Hero of Khartoum?

How many milestones are there on the "Bosporus"?
Who was Pontius Pilate's great grandmother's washing woman?

Where do all the pigs go to?
Are there any shell-fish at the source of the Congo?

Of course there are but a few of the choice curiosities which we have sifted out.
Lord Trevelyan has determined the quality of the formidable bundle that has been forwarded to him elsewhere. It may, however, be amusing to give a few more instances of the ground which is traversed by competitors. "Slavery" asks, "Who made the first shirt?" calmly adding, "a simple question, but I don't believe it can be answered." It is curious to note how many ladies—misses—are anxious to ascertain the date of the end of the world. Married ladies, again, we find, ask Lord Trevelyan for information about the ailments of babies.
One craver asks:

Name me the fabled, whoever she be,
Who greases this island greased by the sea;
Name me the leaves, whose unadorned side Bears Britain's chiefest honour on her side.

most. The Evil One performed with ease such trifles as bridging rapid rivers, splitting mountains into three peaks, &c., but at last Michael set him to making a rope out of every grain of sand, and he is said to be at it yet. Now, what was good enough for a devil should, I think, be good enough for Lord Trevelyan.

With one more question we will wind up.
It is: "Do eels suffer pain from being skinned alive?" This, as our correspondent says, is a very curious and interesting question, for after eels are skinned, they do not appear to wriggle about more than they did before they were skinned, thus apparently not suffering much from being deprived of their epidermis. It is not well established that no one would purchase dead eels? Consequently it is presumable that eels may be skinned, cooked, and eaten, independently of the adjudication of the "Crucity to Animals Society."

WHAT TO DO WITH OUR BOYS.
In the course of an article recommending the diplomatic and consular services as an outlet for "Our Boys," i.e., English boys, Truth says:

As I have remarked already, the Consular service in China, Japan, Siam, Turkey, and Persia is recruited by open competition, to which all classes are eligible. In times past Mamma would have shuddered with horror at the bare idea of Tommy or Harry being sent to Canton or Shanghai. But to-day it is otherwise. Improved communications and the progress of civilisation have considerably tended to modify the severity of such a service, and the parent begins to recognise that Tommy and Harry might do far worse. Here, then, are the prospects for a boy who is willing to go to China or Japan. In Japan, he must not be under eighteen or over twenty-four years of age, and he must be unmarried.
He must pay five £4 to the Civil Service Commissioners, and he is then eligible to compete, when an examination is announced, for Student Interpreterships.
The examination is somewhat severe, and the competition brisk; but assuming the boy is successful, he is provided with a salary of £200 a year, and he is allowed to take a year's leave, or to go to Yokohama, as the case may be, and the choice depends upon his order of merit in the examination—and a salary of £200 a year, which commences ten days before he leaves England. At Peking or Yokohama he is given free quarters, and instructed in the vernacular. In the course of year or so he will probably be sent as assistant to one of the Consulates at the Treaty Ports.
Here he will get another £100 a year. His future progress then depends mainly on himself. If he secures an immediate indulgence in his duties, and does a good deal of good, he may expect to be sent to the Consul at Peking, or to the Consul at Yokohama, or to the Consul at Canton, or to the Consul at Shanghai, or to the Consul at Hongkong, or to the Consul at Amoy, or to the Consul at Swatow, or to the Consul at Canton,
